While brash American women flapped their way to newfound freedoms, heroines of Broadway like Marilyn Miller became a testament to pluck and luck. It was the age of "Whoopie" and the "Charleston," "Runnin' Wild" and the "George White Scandals." In 1921, a jazz show like no other arrived: "Shuffle Along," which featured a rich, rousing score by Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake, reopening Broadway's doors to black artists. Unique talents like the Marx Brothers and Al Jolson, a Jewish immigrant and Prohibition's biggest star rocketed to stardom. The Gershwin brothers, the minstrels of the Jazz Age, brought a "Fascinating Rhythm" to an entire nation. Innovative songwriting teams like Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart ignited a new age of bright melodies and clever lyrics with the massive hit "Manhattan." But as the Roaring Twenties came to a close, Broadway's Jazz Age suffered the one-two punch of the "talking picture" and the stock market crash, triggering a massive talent exodus to Hollywood and putting an end to Broadway's feverish expansion. This series covers the period from the 1890s through the ferment of the Harlem Renaissance and the Jazz Age, to the Great Depression, New Deal, Second World War, and beyond. In this episode, Louis Armstrong arrives in New York from Chicago where, during a brief stay with the Fletcher Henderson band, he amazes his fellow musicians and teaches the city to swing. A blues craze, spearheaded by Bessie Smith, takes the nation by storm. Cornetist Bix Beiderbecke, the first great white jazz artist, eventually plays for bandleader Paul Whiteman, whose blending of classical and jazz traditions comes to epitomize jazz for many Americans. This episode also traces the childhood of Benny Goodman, whose musicianship catapults him out of the slums of Chicago; and Goodman's eventual rival, clarinetist Artie Shaw, who also escapes ghetto life through jazz. Clarinetist Sidney Bechet takes his fiery music to Europe, and singer Ethel Waters brings a new kind of artistry to American popular song. Jelly Roll Morton advances the art of jazz composition, and Duke Ellington begins his incomparable career as the pre-eminent composer in jazz history. The episode ends with Louis Armstrong's teaming with pianist Earl Hines in 1928 to make a series of pivotal recordings that culminate in the masterpiece "West End Blues." 	This ABC News program anchored by Peter Jennings plots out Adolf Hitler's rise to power, in which he uses charisma, guile, and aggression to forge an iron-clad dictatorship from the economic chaos of the 1930s. The Spanish Civil War--proving ground for the inevitable war to come--is addressed, and World War II in Europe is surveyed, spanning events from the blitzkrieg against Poland to the invasion of the Soviet union. The war against Jews is also featured, as the Nuremberg Laws and Kristallnacht foreshadowed the Fuhrer's "final solution". The Home Front During the War	Profiles of Courage, Controversy, and Sacrifice (WWII): Homefront USA (15:01) Examines the many ways that America changed after the bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. The United States was now in a war it had sought to avoid, and Americans mobilized and sacrificed for the war effort at home. In response to anti-Japanese hysteria on the West Coast, more than 100,000 Japanese Americans are removed to internment camps. The program explores living conditions in the camps, the impact of internment on these American citizens, and our government's acknowledgement 40 years later that internment of these citizens was a mistake. The program explores our country's efforts at civil defense, including air raid drills and blackouts, as well as the domestic propaganda campaigns orchestrated by the Office of War Information to "sell the war" to citizens. Americans from all walks of life mobilized to man the war plants—men, teenagers, the elderly, and women inspired by "Rosie the Riveter." The program examines how everyday life changed at home with rationing of twenty essential commodities, including meat, sugar, rubber, and gasoline; the planting of victory gardens; and the scrap drives to collect metal, paper, and rubber. The presentation also discusses bond drives and the role celebrities played in selling war bonds, and, finally, the critical roles played by women recruited by the armed services for non-combat duties at home and overseas. With the war over, American soldiers returned to the United States and once Home, many veterans took advantage of the G.I. Bill that enabled them to get better jobs, low cost loans, and a college education. Americans began to feel peacetime prosperity, they began spending money, and many moved to new locations. Moral and ethical standards began to change, and traditional rules of courtship were suspended. Soldiers were threatened by prostitutes and venereal disease, while the pinup girl sufficed for many. And ill-advised, sudden marriages were portrayed in movies as the perfect solution to the disruption of war. But these changes in American culture, particularly the emergence of a teenage culture that came to permeate society, did not play out fully until the 1960s. And it is a tribute to Charles Hamilton Houston, a black lawyer known as "the man who killed Jim Crow." Interviews with Houston's associates recount how he energized a generation of black jurists, including future Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, to wage the struggle against segregation. The video recapitulates the arguments before the Court, Justice Warren's opinion striking down Plessy v. Ferguson (1896), and the jubilant reactions of black America, and it illustrates how the civil rights movement gave teeth to new laws. From the New Frontier to the Great Society	Lyndon Johnson's Great Society? "The Great Society"—Lyndon Johnson's bundle of federal programs intended to alter the fabric of American life—are examined in this documentary by those who administered them and by British journalist Charles Wheeler. Programs in the areas of civil rights, health care (Medicare and Medicaid), unemployment, and the environment are discussed. Historical footage of poverty pockets highlights discussions of Johnson's "War on Poverty." Given ongoing social problems and the questionable efficacy of some of the initiatives, students will be inclined to think critically about many of the programs and their gradual dismantling. Johnson's legislative initiatives included Medicaid, civil rights, guaranteed student loans, and other measures designed to fight poverty and unemployment. In television news clips, we hear him deceive the American public as he plans to escalate the war. When public opinion turns against him, Johnson chooses not to run for reelection, leaving the field open for Republican candidate Richard Nixon. Nixon is elected and immediately begins a methodical dismantling of Johnson's social programs. A BBC Production. Born Malcolm Little in Omaha, Nebraska in 1925, Malcolm, like his father, taught racial pride and black separation from whites, and like other political assassinations of the '60s, his death shook the nation. Showing that great leaders often rise from struggle, the program details how in his troubled youth, Malcolm became involved with drugs and crime, was convicted of burglary and sent to prison in 1946. This volatile start led to his study of the teachings of Elijah Mohammed; he carried the message of Islam and black pride to others when he was paroled in 1952. Beginning of Détente	Powerplay: End of an Empire In the midst of the trauma of the Vietnam War, a U.S. diplomatic strategy evolves that begins the unraveling of the Soviet Empire. This program on the Cold War of the 1970s and 80s, hosted by David Frost and featuring historian Michael Beschloss, focuses on such key events and tactics as détente, the manipulations that sparked Middle East tensions between Soviet-supported Egypt and American-backed Israel, Nixon's historic trip to China, the SALT talks, the "dirty little wars" in Central America, the Reagan Revolution and his Strategic Defense Initiative, the fall of the Berlin Wall, "perestroika" and "glasnost," and the ultimate collapse of the Soviet Union. Exclusive Frost interviews with Margaret Thatcher, Norman Schwarzkopf, Mikhail Gorbachev, Presidents Carter, Reagan, and Bush, and others, along with the use of previously classified U.S. and Russian documents, bring the story of the last decades of the Cold War to life. The United States in the Post-Cold War World
Globalization and the American economy	Global Economic Issues A major aspect of globalization is the increased interconnectedness of the world economy. Thanks to transportation and communications technologies, trillions of dollars worth of currencies, goods and services flash across the world each day. Free trade advocates stress that nations, which have embraced global trade policies, have benefited tremendously. However, "fair traders" say that the rules of the global economy are unfair and that only a few benefit, causing an increased gap between rich and poor. Global Economic Issues explores the early wave of globalization, explains the post-World War II trend toward increased government control of the economy and examines issues associated with the recent wave of economic globalization. 23 minutes	DVD 337 GLO Safari Montage http://econtent.bucksiu.org/SAFARI/montage/login.php?fromlogoutlink=true&login
